Mayor Jacobs' Small Business Series Features Ionogen

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.— Knox County Mayor Glenn Jacobs interviews John Shanahan, president and CEO of Knoxville-based Ionogen, as part of his small business series.

Each week, the Mayor conducts interviews with small business owners, offering them the opportunity to talk about what they do; highlight their work; and share any future plans. This month, the series focuses on technology-related businesses and operations. A new vignette runs each Wednesday on the county and Mayor's various social media platforms.

Ionogen takes electrolyzed water and creates its own "enriched super oxidizing solution" designed to eliminate the most dangerous pathogens and germs, the company's president said.

"We do that in a very unique way – we do that in solutions that are not harmful to you...and will not harm our beautiful environment as well," Shanahan said.
