Mayor Jacobs Talks About Dream Center, Voting, UT Football, and More

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.— During his Weekly Update that will post around 1 p.m. today, Knox County Mayor Glenn Jacobs talks about reopening the Par 3 golf course at Concord Park; unveiling a banner at the Dream Center recognizing their tremendous contributions to our community; early voting; the UT-Alabama football rivalry; and more.

The renovations on the golf course include a complete overhaul of the greens at the course.

“Our Parks Department worked with the University of Tennessee’s agronomy department to incorporate native grasses into the turf and complete the project at a fraction of the projected cost,” Mayor Jacobs notes.

Mayor Jacobs also points out that early voting kicked off this past Wednesday and continues through Oct. 31.

“Election day, obviously, is November 5th. You can get more info, including the sample ballot, early voting locations, and schedules at <https://knoxcounty.org/election/>,” he says.

Mayor Jacobs also thanks the community for donating toward the Hurricane Helene recovery.

“We still have a long way to go, but your generosity and compassion continues to be amazing,” he says.

Finally, Mayor Jacobs also mentions that the University of Tennessee football Vols take on the Alabama Crimson Tide at Neyland Stadium. This will be the 107th meeting between the teams with ‘Bama winning 16 of the past 17 games.

“Oh, but wasn’t that lone Tennessee win one for the ages as the Vols defeated the Tide 52-49 the last time the two met here in Knoxville in one of the greatest college football games ever,” Mayor Jacobs adds. “Let’s hope tomorrow produces a similar result.”
